Following the introductory addresses, the workshop participants will be challenged to discuss and suggest how we can go Beyond IYC 2012 to revitalize, promote and grow the co-operative option.

Are co-ops still relevant today and why?
Why is the history of co-operatives hidden?
Who is afraid of co-ops and why?
Why do co-ops flourish in tough times?
How can co-ops become a movement that cannot be ignored?
How can co-operatives co-operate?

The workshop will commence with two short introductions.

Paul Flowers, Chairman, The Co-operative Banking Group and Deputy Chairman of The Co-operative Group in the UK, will speak about IYC 2012 in the UK and elsewhere throughout the world.

Melina Morrison is director of Australia's Secretariat for the UN International Year of Co-operatives (www.australia2012.coop) and a founding director of Social Business Australia (www.socialbusiness.coop). She has written widely on co-operatives and the social economy for international and national publications. She has wide experience engaging the media on building social capital through profitable social businesses. Melina will discuss the Australian response to IYC 2012.
